CHAPTER XVII.

PARIS.

The first settlor of this town was a Capt. Rice, who moved on to what is now known as Paris Hill, about the first of March, 1789. About three weeks after, and on the 20th of March, Benjamin Barnes, Benjamin Barnes, jun., and John Humaston, arrived and settled in the neighborhood. Three days after the arrival of Mr. Barnes, Stephen Barrett came, and within a few weeks after, three brothers, Aaron, Adams, and Abel Simmons, moved on to the Hill. These were the first settlers of the town of Paris, as it now is ; but it should be borne in mind that Clinton, which was originally included, and whose inhabitants gave it its name, was settled two years earlier by Capt. Foot and his company.

The early settlers of Paris Hill were a moral and religious people. In 1791 a small Congregational Church, of five members, was constituted by Dr. Jonathan Edwards, while on the same visit to these frontier settlements in which he officiated in the formation of the first churches at Clinton and New Hartford. All that is obtained of the history of the Paris Hill Church is contained in the inscription from the table stone over the grave of the Rev. Mr. Steele, its first pastor, which is copied entire. It is very much regretted that more of the earlier and later statistics of this venerable body have not been obtained. Assurances were made that, without fail, they should be forthcoming, but they have never been received.
