which the colliery is located contains 228 acres of land and is owned by the heirs of A. H. Reeder, of Essex township. This completes the list of the coal operations in Banks township. Different parties have expended time and treasure in prospecting for coal on the Reeder property, farther east in the township than the Reeder openings that have been noticed, but so far without success.

In speaking of the towns of this division of Carbon county, it has already been said that they owe their existence entirely to the underlying mineral wealth, and they came into being as the collieries on which they depend were developed.

Audenried and Yorktown, adjoining each other in the western portion of the township, and a small section of the former is built across the line between Schuylkill county. Audenried is the namesake of Lewis Audenried, of Philadelphia, while Yorktown probably so christened in recognition of the company that owns the land on which it is located,—the York and Lehigh Coal Company.

The postoffice at Audenried was opened on October 15, 1860, Samuel Martyn, a brother of John Martyn Sr., of Beaver Meadow, being the first postmaster. The office was for many years kept in the store of Daniel Honey Brook Coal Company.

About the year 1870, the Rev. Daniel Durrelle was sent to this section by the Presbyterian Board of Missions. Through his influence a congregation was organized, and a church was erected in 1872, at Audenried. This church has now no regular pastor.

The Methodists of this region were formerly under the charge of ministers from the Conyngham district. The church of this denomination was erected here in 1869.

Patrick's Roman Catholic church was commenced in 1873, the cornerstone being laid in June of that year. It was completed and dedicated two years later, Archbishop Wood performing the dedicatory service. The church was torn down about 1898 and removed to Schuylkill county, which is but a short distance from Audenried. The Catholic population of the township place now worship there.

The Welsh Baptists and the Congregationalists worshipped together for a few years in the old armory building, and later in the school house. In 1872, the members of the first named denomination built a church at a cost of $2,500. Extensive improvements since since been made. It is now known as an English Baptist church. The Congregational church has no regular pastor.

The Evangelical Lutheran church was organized in 1861, the leading spirits in the movement being Rev. F. A. Schlenker, then pastor of Christ church, Hazleton, and Rev. George Kunkle, then of Weatherly. The church was erected in 1893, the cornerstone being laid on the twenty-ninth of October.

In July 10, 1871, the company which erected Hoskins Hall was formed. A lot was donated by the New York and Lehigh Coal Company. The building erected there, which is still standing, cost $7,500.

Tresckow, lying east of Audenried and Yorktown, is the outgrowth of the mining operations commenced in 1851 by the German Pennsylvania Coal Company. Formerly it was commonly known as Dutchman's. By many it is to-day called Park View. The site of the postoffice, however, is Tresckow. It is a small village, containing many cozy dwelling houses. The people of the place find employment at the nearby collieries of the various coal companies. The Banks
