Two statements for introduction: Jas. Logan writing to the Penns said in describing the Scots and Ulstermen: "bold and indigent strangers, saying as their excuse when challenged for titles, that we had solicited for colonists and they had come accordingly." Another said for racial characteristic: "Opposed to paying rent, however small." This could be one reason they are so hard to trace. We know from record that no other Pentlands came to the Colonies until a William, age 19, came to NY in 1822. All other Pentlands earlier in the Colonies were related in some way.

To analyze the will of John let's review printing in 17-1800's. Hand set men were called "compositors." They were paid by the "stick"; it held 12 lines of 10 pt etc. The compositor stood before a type case with all letters separated in its own section of the "type case." He was not paid for distributing type, this was done on his own time. Speed made money. This in combination with poor hand script writing added to what you are seeing printed in old books. "h" was often picked up instead of "l", "a" & "e" very often became mixed because of fast glances in distribution. I think that research on McDowell would tie to the McDowells of NC.

"?? Great Grandfather John" knew he was going to die, hence the reason for re-affirming his will seven hours before his death. This will is personal property and does not list real estate owned or left to him.

East Jersey was Dutch settled in 1617; by 1625 the first trickle of Scots had come. By 1650 the trickle had become a small flood settling in five counties in Jersey. "Old Scotts" of later Monmouth Co. was settled very early. If they were Ulster Scots from Ireland they could only have resided there a very short time.

These people were Presbyterians fleeing from the cruelties of Charles I 1625-1642. Henry Ross of the will could be a son-in-law of John. He lived with his daughter when he died. Note John's Bible and confession of faith. The confession book was written by John Knox and assistants from Calvin's works in five days.

Start "your" research NOW. I believe you will find it more satisfying than any "nintendo game" and the like ever invented. If Henry or John is the progenitor of "us" then we can sort him out in Midlothian Scotland. (GHP)
